Pittsburgh, July 11, 1817. 6

A grand object for the Enterprising,

WHEREIN a partner is wanted, to improve & occupy one of the most eligible and advantageous Mill-seats in the Western world It is situated in the Illinois Territory, within six miles of Vincennes, on the great road leading to St. Louis and Kaskaskia, on the river Amberas, which is a stream sufficiently large to afford water to carry on any works that may be thought necessary, at all times—One of the banks of the stream is a permanent rock, rather of the saponaceous kind impervious to water and easily cut or fashioned, as may be required—the bottom of the stream, opposite the mill is all sheeted with the same. The seat lies within one and a half miles of the Wabash river, enjoys all the advantages of the navigation of the same—the circumjacent country is equal to any section in the western country for agriculture, and especially for that staple commodity, WHEAT, as its situation is high and undulating, and of course healthy—the soil of a black loam mixed with sand—the face of the country interspersed with praries of the most agreeable texture, and in fertility second to none, and for the most part surrounded by luxuriant wood-lands, and as we may say it is yet almost in a state of nature, and affords a most advantageous range for cattle, hogs, etc. A number of families have lately settled in the vicinity, and shortly we look for a flourishing settlement there. Nature has been exuberant at the seat, as there is scarce any advantage that the enterprising partizan might almost wish or expect that is not to be found there. Take into view the manufacturing of flower largely for foreign markets—a complete seat for a boat and ship yard also, for a brewery, distillery, and tanyard, and a well equiped tavern is much wanted at present to accommodate the road, and for which it is an excellent stand—there are many other advantages that will appear by taking a view of the premises. There is an excellent saw-mill now going, on the spot.

My primary object is to have erected and equiped a merchant mill with not less than three pair of stones. I will furnish the seat upon equiable terms.

It is hoped none will offer that are not of good standing in society, men of enterprize, and possessed of such funds as will enable them to carry on largely. A trio partnership would be preferred, as there is a great field for enterprize.

I also wish to sell the plantation I now live on, it contains 400 acres, 80 of which is under high cultivation, the fertility of which is second to none, has on it an excellent never failing spring, well calculated for a brewery or distillery as it has a great fall, situated within 3 miles of Vincennes, the subscriber who lives on the premises would think himself honored by any gentleman's calling who might have an eye to either of the objects & would take pleasure in shewing the same.

From the Federal Republican.

A Norfolk paper of the 15th instant states, that a combat took place at St. Croix, between some American sailors belonging to the ship Gleaner of New-York and a part of the crew of a Danish government vessel, in which the former was represented as coming off victorious, having handled the Danes very roughly. The day following the rencounter, a boat put off from a Danish vessel, with a number of sailors, but no officer, and rowed towards the Gleaner. When sufficiently near, they rested on their oars, and commenced abusing the American sailors; who, in return, assailed the Danes with whatever missiles they could lay their hands on, which compelled them to seek safety in flight. A complaint was thereupon lodged with the Governor of the Island founded on an alledged indignity offered the Danish flag.—A court was convened—the Americans ordered ashore for trial, when it was proven that the Danish sailors were the aggressors in every instance. Both the law and the evidence acquitted the Americans of the charge upon which they were arraigned—yet notwithstanding, the Governor, in order to allay the clamors of the plantiffs, ordered that the Steward of the Gleaner should be selected for punishment, and receive TWENTY-FIVE LASHES, which sentence was rigidly executed.

Comment on the above is useless---It carries its own appeal to the feelings.---Government should not suffer so flagrant an outrage to pass unnoticed without speedy and ample atonement.

From the Boston Evening Intel. Aug. 16.

UNCOMMON SERPENT.

We have in our possession an extract of a letter from John Low, Esq. to his son in this town dated Gloucester, Thursday afternoon Aug. 1817.

"There has been on Monday and on Tuesday morning playing about our harbour between Eastern Point and Ten pound Island—a SNAKE with his head and body about 8 feet out of water—his head in perfect shape as large as the head of a horse—his body is judged to be about 45 or 50 feet in length—it is thought he will girt about 3 feet round the body, and his sting is about 4 feet in length.

While writing the above, a person has called in, who says that there are two to be seen, playing from the Stage-head into the harbour inside of Ten pound Island.

The spectators are Mr. Charles Smith and Mr. John Proctor and several others. A number of our sharp shooters are in pursuit of him but cannot make a ball penetrate his head. Another party is just going in pursuit with guns, harpoons, &c.—Our small craft are fearful of venturing out a fishing. The above can be attested to by 20 different people of undoubted veracity."

SECOND EDITION.

Sunday Morning, Aug. 17, 6 o'clock.

Further of the Serpent at Cape Ann.—Some respectable persons are in town who have established the fact of the appearance of this extraordinary water monster in Cape Ann harbor. It was reported to have been seen by some fishermen about ten days since, but nobody gave credit to the story; and it was not generally credited until Sunday last when the Serpent was seen as we understand from the shore. The head appears mixed with black and white, and to resemble that of a large dog—the back of the body is black, and the opinions both as to its length and thickness vary considerably. Those persons who have approached the nearest to it, or within 10 or 15 yards, consider the length to be from 60 to 70 feet, and the size of a barrel in thickness. Its motions serpentine, various and of extreme rapidity--sometimes forcing nearly a complete circle in turning quickly round, and sometimes with its head out of water, darting forward at the rate of a mile in three minutes, leaving a wake behind of half a mile in length.

Some of the adventurous seamen of Cape Ann we hear are endeavouring to construct a net of sufficient resistance, to hold the Serpent, and prevent his escape.

FROM THE NORTH AMERICAN JOURNAL

Extract from the "Sketches of the Scenery on the Niagara River."

It was near sunset when we first visited Table Rock. We lingered there till not a purple tint remained on the column of mist. which rose on the still air. There is such a flood of light reflected from this mass of white foam, that the falls are distinct long after every other object is obscured. On returning, our path through the wood and marsh was hardly discernible; but when we reached the top of the hill a warm flush still coloured the west and the evening star shed on us its brightest beam. This scene of tranquil beauty formed a fine contrast with the tremendous one we had just quitted, a contrast peculiarly grateful to our tired minds which had expanded to their utmost limits of perception and emotion.—Nearly a mile back of the Horse Shoe Fall, is Lundy's lane or heights, where the battle, commonly called the battle of Bridge-water, was fought. It is an extensive elevated plain with some small eminences.

Gen. Brown having been disappointed in the co-operation of the fleet which he had expected, changed his plan of operations and fell back from Queenstown to Chippewa. On the 25th July, 1814 the British collecting their forces, marched up the river and were met near Lundy's lane by a detachment under Gen. Scott---an engagement immediately commenced. As soon as intelligence of this reached the camp, Generals Porter and Ripley pressed forward to his support, but General Scott gallantly sustained the conflict an hour before their arrival. The whole army was soon engaged, still the British force commanded by Generals Riall and Drummond, was superior. The battle began about sunset, and lasted till midnight, and is considered the most bloody which was fought during the war. Generals Brown & Scott were severely wounded, but did not quit the field.

The eager combatants were unmindful of the departure of the day. The half orbed moon was high in the heavens at its close, and shed a pale and doubtful light on the scene, Her rays were brightly reflected from the polished arms of the front ranks of the British while broad shadows concealed the mass behind. Reinforcements arrived to the British, but the Americans could not ascertain their numbers, They opposed and cut down fresh troops, which advanced on them but saw not and considered not the force in reserve. The enemy's artillery possessed a height of great importance; col. Miller was ordered to dislodge them. The regiment which was to support him fell back. Still col. Miller advanced through the indistinctness of this light and shade. Bursts of fire flashed across, from the mouths of those engines of destruction and his mind collected at a glance, rapid and luminous as the lightning of the artillery, all the information requisite for defence and execution. The height and the cannon were no longer in the possession of the British.

During this night of horror & destruction the thunder of the cannon was lost in the roar of the torrent, and the earth was shaken by a mightier force than the discharge of artillery or the trampling of the war horse, and when the battle raged no more, and the moon on the verge of the sky ceased to throw her light on the dismal spectacle, the few who escaped unhurt listened in vain for the well known voice, which should enable them to distinguish their wounded companions, amongst the heaps of slain.—That awful stillness, broken only by the low moaning of the wounded and dying which succeeds the tumult of battle, had here no place.—Every sound was confounded in the noise of the torrent, which has for ages passed over the precipice.

This field of the battle of Niagara, is certainly a spot of as much interest as any our country affords. Its proximity to the falls of Niagara, the time at which it was fought, the numerous instances of individual heroism, the general valour of our troops, the superior and well disciplined force which they encountered and discomfitted, and the immense proportion of dead and wounded which were found on the field offer a combination rarely to be met with.

From the Quarterly Review.

RILEY'S SHIPWRECK AND CAPTIVITY.

Sidi Hamet, who makes so conspicuous a figure in this volume, is no fictitious personage, like his namesake Sidi Hamet Benengeh; he is mentioned by Adams and Dufries: and since Riley's release, has to a certain degree redeemed the pledge which he made at parting—"Your friend (Mr. Wilshire) has fed me with milk and honey, and I will always in future do what is in my power to redeem Christians from slavery." Scarcely two months after this, the brig Surprise of Glasgow, with a crew of seventeen persons and three passengers was cast away close to Cape Bajador on the 28th December, 1815, when the whole with the exception of two that were drowned, fell into the hands of the Arabs, who marched them as usual into the interior, till they met a Moor on horseback, to whom they were delivered, and who took them to Wednoon. This was no other than Sidi Hamet, who advised them to write to Mr. Willshire, English Consul at Suze, who, having heard of the wreck, had already entered into engagements for their ransom with Sidi Ishem, the chief of Wednoon, & the principal owner of the caravan which perished, as we have related, in the Desert. They were ransomed and sent to England, as was also, at the same time, a lad of the name of Alexander Scott, who was wrecked in the Montezuma of Liverpool in 1810, as mentioned by Adams, and who had remained in slavery ever since. His appearance is said to be most deplorable; though not twenty he wore the marks of advanced age.

GOOD MANNERS.

Dean Swift wrote a treatise on Good Manners, from which we extract this anecdote.

There is a pedantry in manners, as in all arts and sciences, and sometimes in trades. It would be endless to recount the many foolish and ridiculous accidents I have observed among the unfortunate proselytes to ceremony. I have seen a dutchess fairly knocked down by the precipitancy of an officious coxcomb running to save her the trouble of opening a door. I remember upon a birth-day at court, a great lady was utterly disconsolate by a dish of sauce let fall by a page directly upon her head dress and brocade; while she gave a sudden turn of her elbow upon some point of ceremony with the person who sat next to her. Monsieur Buys, the Dutch envoy, whose politics and manners were much of a size, brought a son with him, about thirteen years old, to a great table at court. The boy and his father, whatever they put on their plates they first offered round in order, to every person in company; so that we could not get a minute's quiet during the whole dinner. At last their two plates happened to encounter, and with so much violence, that, being china, they broke in twenty pieces; and stained half the company wit wet sweet meats and cream.

PITTSBURGH.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 29, 1817.

After considerable reflection on the subject we had resolved, in our editorial capacity, to remain neuter in the approaching contest, between Mr. Findlay and Mr. Heister; as neither of them was the kind of man, who, we conceived, ought to hold the first office in so important a member of the union as Pennsylvania, and, as we presumed, there was no very great difference between them, as to talents or political worth, our determination was to hold our pages open to the moderate communications of both parties, without pledging ourselves to either. Our own private vote, as a freeman of the Commonwealth, we intended should be regulated by the impulse of the moment, and by any new light which might be thrown on the subject previous to the day of election. Circumstances, however, have occurred, recently, to change this determination. The caucus influence which first brought Mr. Findlay before the public, we detested—as a citizen of a republic, we must express our abhorrence to an usurpation so dangerous as this; but still, if the character so taken up, is the proper one to fill an office, it would probably be going too far, to set up an improper one, merely out of opposition to a caucus. We therefore meant not to object to Mr. Findlay, solely, because he was the person so taken up, provided, we found him superior to his opponent in other respects. This, however, we have at length been convinced is not the case. Acts of corruption on the part of Mr. Findlay have been disclosed, of such a nature, as to make us shudder at the idea of having for our chief magistrate, a man, who, at so early a period of our political existence would dare to be guilty of them.

We publish a letter below, which, whatever doubts may have before existed on the subject, will settle the point, as to Mr. Findlay's making use of the funds of the commonwealth, for improper purposes, and will establish, that he has appropriated in a manner not contemplated by the law, and without authority, that treasure, over which he was placed as a sacred guardian. It appears to be proved beyond a doubt, that he has changed money for individuals,—that is, he has accommodated rich, influential western merchants, with funds from the treasury which would pass at par in Philadelphia, in exchange for such trash as was then worth from 5 to 10 per cent. less. We now find by the annexed extract, that, regularly as the examination of the money in the treasury approached, Mr. Findlay was borrowing money from the bank—for what? here is the mystery; he will not explain; but as the loans were always procured at the critical moment of the examination of the treasury, we can entertain but one opinion on the subject—he borrowed the money as an individual, applied it to the credit of the commonwealth, and, when the note became due, & after the examination was over, he paid it off by his check as treasurer; and so he went on for the years 1814, '15 and '16. This is too bad; if the people choose to be gulled in this way, in the name of common sense, go on gentlemen.

Harrisburgh, August 19, 1817.

SIR,

On the 15th of August instant, came on the trial, "George Kline, editor of the Carlisle Gazette, against James Peacock, editor of the Harrisburg Republican," for a libel; before John Downey, James Montgomery, George Hoyer, John Zehring, and Dr. Samuel Agnew, arbitrators.—A writer, in Klines Carlisle Gazette of June 2d, stated that, "William Findlay has annually for four years, in or near the month of December, borrowed money from the Banks for the shortest period for which such institutions lend money--sixty days--and has always as punctually taken up his note at the end of that short period. He has annually increased those loans, no doubt as his use for money became more necessary, until the loan last December, amounting to the round sum of $5000."—In the Harrisburgh Republican of the 10th June, this was flatly denied, and Kline was pronounced libeller, liar, &c. for which libellous publication the suit was brought by Kline.

A subpœna duces tecum was issued to the cashier of the bank of Philadelphia here, and to each of the directors, at the instance of the plaintiff Kline, to produce the Bank books before the arbitrators. It was refused to produce the Bank books. An application was then made by the plaintiff for an attachment, which was resisted by the defendant. But the arbitrators decided that the attachment should be granted. On this the Bank books were forthcoming.—From the Bank books it appeared, that Wm. Findlay, state treasurer had drawn sums out of the branch Bank here, at the following times and under the circumstances mentioned.

Nov. 14, 1814, note at 60 days, for $3000; Robert Smith drawer and Wm. Findlay indorser. The note discounted & the amount drawn by the check of Wm. Findlay---but no notice of payment or renewal on the books.

Nov. 20, 1815, note at 60 days, for $3000—same drawer and indorser. Wm. Findlay drew the money by his check, and had it applied to the credit of the commonwealth. At the end of 60 days, the note was paid by the check of Wm. Findlay as Treasurer.

Nov. 18, 1816, note at 60 days, for $5000--same drawer and indorser. Wm. Findlay had $4500 of this applied to the credit of the commonwealth, and drew the balance out of the Bank. The note was paid at 60 days by the check of Wm. Findlay as Treasurer, out of the commonwealth's funds.

The Auditor General, G. Bryan, was a witness, and said that the examination of the cash in the Treasury (and the credits of the Treasurer for deposits in the Banks at Philadelphia and the branch Bank at Harrisburgh were taken as cash) took place annually on the last day of November or 1st of December.

No evidence was offered by the defendant to explain the purposes for which the accommodations of 1814 and 1815 were obtained. But a letter and deposition of John Findlay were read, to shew, that the accommodation of 1816 was obtained to procure funds to pay the second instalment which would be due in January 1817, for 100 shares of stock of the bank of the United States—owned as was alledged by John Findlay but from all appearances, this stock was the joint concern of Wm. and John Findlay. That however is not material to this precise loan, as the money was never taken out of the Bank, but $4500 of it immediately placed to the credit of the Commonwealth.

Report for Plaintiff for $5 33 1-3 and costs of suit.—All the Arbitrators signed the Report.

ST. AUGUSTINE.

The Editor of the Augusta Chronicle appears to think this post impregnable. It is only assailable by land, there being but 8 feet water on the bar at the mouth of the harbour. "Its natural advantages are considered equal, if not superior to those of Quebeck. The fort, which is bomb proof commands the town and the outlets to the ocean—it can mount about 20 pieces of cannon, is capable of conveniently containing 5000 men, and encircled by a fosse on the land side, 35 or 40 feet wide. Almost every house in the town may be converted into a garrison; they are principally built of Tabby, (a composition of oyster-shell and lime) which renders them capable of advantageously resisting the impression of a cannon ball. The Tabby is procured from Fishing Island, adjacent to the town. Upon this Island are a few plantations and luxuriant groves of orange, lime and citron. According to a rough calculation St. Augustine is supposed to be about half as large as Augusta, and its population as proportionably great."

NEW SADDLES.

We have lately seen, says the Richmond Compiler, a species of saddle, which is now getting into use, of a new construction.—It has no saddle-tree in it. Nearly the whole saddle consists of padding, very closely pressed; and in lieu of the saddle-tree, is this padding raised, in a very dense manner, so as to form a pommel. There is a great deal of stiching about it to confine the padding, which gives it the appearance of a worked lady's saddle. It is remarkably easy both for the horse and the rider. The only disadvantage, that strikes at first sight, is, that if the saddle gets wet, it will take some pains to dry it. An oil-cloth, or some other cover, may be employed to screen it from this inconvenience.

We published sometime since a most extraordinary account of the power of volition over the vital and animal functions, in which, as related by Dr. Cheyne, the person "could to all appearance die, at any time he chose, and after having lain a considerable time exactly as a corpse, was able to restore himself to the various functions of animation and intellect." We learn from the American Monthly Magazine of New-York, that this singular experiment was the last the man made, for in a few hours afterwards he actually died.

Caution to the Public,

DR. LEE'S (WINDHAM)

BILIOUS PILLS,

OR

FAMILY PHYQIC.

THE above named pills, are the true and original patent Lee's Pills, and are the first Pill for which a patent was ever granted in America.

The universal esteem in which these Pills have been held for many years, as a mild, safe, and efficacious Family Medicine, and the great and increasing demand for them, in most parts of the U. States and West Indies, has induced several wicked and unprincipled dealers in medicines, (particularly in Philadelphia) to make and sell Pills, which they style Lee's Windham Bilious Pills; making use of a copy of his bill of directions, &c. and offering the same for sale, as the genuine Lee's Pills, whereas the true and original Lee's Pills were never prepared in any place except in Windham, (Con.) nor by any persons except the proprietors of the patent. To guard against deceptions of this kind, the public are requested to observe, that each box of the true Lee's Pills, is enclosed in an elegant stereotype label, with these words on the sides thereof; Lee's genuine Windham Bilious Pills: and on the end of the label, the words, Samuel Lee, Patentee, & I. Thompson, agent, joint proprietor, &c and should any be offered for sale without said label on them, the purchaser may be assured that they are counterfeit and not the genuine Lee's Pills. To those who are in the habit of using the genuine pills, the fraud is easily discovered by their effects, and those who may wish to make use of them may guard against counterfeits and imposters, and always be sure of the genuine pills, by observing that they purchase none unless they are enclosed in the label aforesaid.

The proprietors have for several years past expended large sums, in order to break down counterfeiters and dishonest dealers, but are yet convinced that there are some, who not only disregard the laws and the rights of others, but also the injuries they do to the community, by selling their own dangerous compositions, for the genuine Lee's Pills, whenever they think they can do it without being detected & brought to justice. For the purpose of putting a stop to such nefarious traffic, the proprietors have been at very great expence in procuring the stereotype label, and the public may rest assured, that no genuine pills, will be sold without the label being around each box; and as a further inducement to the public to be on their guard against the designs of those dealers in medicines, who keep such counterfeit pills in their shops. The proprietors hereby offer a reward of Three Hundred Dollars, to any person who will prove to conviction, the person or persons who shall make & sell such counterfeit pills and as proper steps have been taken to discover those persons who sell such counterfeit pills, and on whom suspicion already rests, it is hoped that their names will soon be before the public, as dealers in counterfeit medicines, and their persons before the district court of the U. States, to answer for an infringement of the patent.

The approbation of medical gentlemen and the opinion of many thousands of respectable persons who have experienced the good effect of the genuine Lee's Pills, as a mild, safe and efficacious purgative, for removing jaundice, Headach, indigestion, costiveness, cholic, autumnal fevers, and all Billious complaints, are it is presumed, a sufficient recommendation to those who may wish to make use of them in families or elsewhere.

The genuine Lee's Pills, are sold by the most of those druggists in the U. States who choose to keep good articles of medicine in preference to base ones A deposit of the genuine pills, will always be kept at the store of Thatcher and Thompson, N. W. corner of Market and Second street; by the proprietors of the patent, where druggists and others, may always be certain of obtaining the true pills, on the same terms as of the patentee.

Agent to the Patentee.

THE subscriber has invented and obtained patent for cutting and bending links to ma chain of different sizes.

Chain made of those links will have a superior advantage over the chain made in the common way as the iron is first drawn into a wire which makes each link of an equal thickness and more beautiful and strong than the common chain.

To the wholesale merchant they will be sold at 21 doll. per dozen. The links will likewise be sold to blacksmiths or others at 23 dolls. per hundrod pounds with the necessary complement of rings, each chain requires six pound of links.

Orders accompanied with the cash will be promptly attended to by the subscriber at his works adjoining Pittsburgh.
